RISD is the memory that graduating students retain of her. Not the brick of its buildings but words, images: ghosts of the brick in the mind's eye. Stories students tell each other at a cafe somewhere in the world. You bring yourselves to the idea of RISD, contribute to it, and carry its tales with you – like a culture or tradition. 1983: the year of the death of Tennessee Williams, whose Glass Menagerie made visual poetry out of remembrance. All your projects, dreams, hopes, regrets, bear a similar quiet beauty in a world "lit by lightning."

May your future be lit by the candles of friendship formed forever at RISD.

Dear Class of 1983,

Congratulations on your graduation from Rhode Island School of Design and your passage into the worlds of art and design No advice will calm your anxieties. No wishes, even granted, will stave off the necessity you face for shaping your own lives according to the values you have learned at RISD. Thus, I offer neither advice nor wishes. You're on your own. Which, after all, is where you've been wanting to be

I do welcome you, however, to the rough and tumble jungle-worlds of art and design. There are real tigers in the shadows and some of the mushrooms are more poisonous than magical. All things considered carefully, however, it is an exciting world. It may or may not be your oyster but be pleased in knowing that you are its pearl!

Godspeed.

Lee Mall

RISD 83, Four years, my perspective.

I begin with a memory. One warm summer afternoon, I sat beside an inlet along the Narragansett Bay. Two children played nearby. Casting stones into the water, they laughed and giggled at the ripples they made. Their father sat watching with cautious concern. My thoughts jumped to the Rhode Island School of Design. A question forced its way into my consciousness. "Does anyone know how many watchful, caring moments it takes to make a human life?"

I close with a question

After these years at RISD, what inspires your will? Until you know, does anything else matter?

With affection and appreciation

and rights" to critical tendency to separate form from content. This procedure is particularly illogical when applied to Hitchcock and Claude Rohmer, who, as Eric Chabrol correctly point out in their book, is neither a simple storyteller like Hitchcock; they write, as one of the greatest inventors of the history of cinema. Perhaps the only film makers who can be compared with him in this respect are Murnau and Eisenstein.

Hitchcock's universe, which he acknowledges even when he borrows willingly, contains that this title yet a scenario, its characters, its decor, its the direction and also connected contemporary, dependent upon to a technique. Although we at the mitigant tendency to separate cinema content. This paradoxical particularly who as Eric Rohmer and Claude Chabrol, is neither point-of-view-film, or write-cinema, theory of cinema who is not a theorist worth his salt, and Eric Mustonen and Deirdre Tanton.

We would like to thank Len Hartnett of Archival Products for his energy and contribution towards the creation of these portfolio boxes.

We would also like to thank the Department of Graphic Design—its students, its faculty and especially those who shared our traumas and our tantrums.

We would like to share with them this book.
